

STARTING BUSINESS GUIDE (INDIVIDUALS)

JANUARY 2021

Introduction

This leaflet is intended to give any individual or person starting his own business an insight into his tax obligations and the records he has to keep for his own benefit. These notes apply to trade, business, vocation and profession, whether full time or part time. They relate only to businesses carried on by Individuals or Sociétés or Partnerships, not to those carried on by companies.

If there is any matter not covered by these notes on which you need advice, please phone MRA's helpdesk on 207 6000.

The notes in the Guide are informative only and have no legal force.

Things to do right at the start

1. As soon as you start a business on your own account, you should register as a selfemployed person with the MRA.
2. If you have given up your previous employment, you should collect your Statement of Emoluments & Tax Deduction with your previous employer in order to include your employment income in your return at the end of the income year.
3. You will have to keep proper records of all your business transactions in order to help you prepare your final accounts. Whether to retain the services of an accountant or not is something you are free to decide by yourself.
4. Even if returns are submitted electronically, final accounts have to be provided to the MRA on demand.
5. If you employ someone in the business, you must register as an employer and may have to deduct income tax under PAYE (Pay As You Earn) and pay CSG/NSF/ Training Levy in respect of that employee. As a self-employed, you will be required to pay CSG at a rate of Rs 150 monthly.
6. You will have to register for VAT if the taxable supplies you make exceed Rs 6M a year. You will then be considered as a VAT registered person and you will have to use VAT invoices only.
7. Once a person is registered for VAT, he charges VAT at the rate of 15% on all taxable supplies other than zero-rated supplies made to his customers.
8. It is advisable for you to have a separate bank account for business transactions. If you do not have a bank account, you will find it useful to open one to bank your sales.

Books and Records

1. Irrespective of the type and size of your business and whether you are registered for VAT or not, it is of utmost importance to keep records of your business transactions which will help you prepare your final accounts in the foreseeable future. Receipts payments and expenses relating to the business should be recorded intact.
2. In case you are registered for VAT , you will have to issue VAT invoices in accordance with the VAT Act and request VAT invoices from your suppliers in order to enable you to claim input tax on your purchases and expenses.
3. Businesses are mainly conducted on either cash basis or credit basis or both, depending on its working capital management. Therefore, a cash book and books of credits should be kept.
4. When goods are sold on credit to customers, these customers are called debtors. Hence, records are kept for debtors and this will help you make an exercise called ageing of debtors, and at the same time, to use the closing figure in your balance sheet.
5. When goods are purchased on credit from suppliers, those suppliers are called as creditors and they should be recorded properly in your book of accounts because its closing figure will be posted in your balance sheet which will have an impact in your net assets value.
6. There are two types of expenses namely business expenses and private expenses. It is important to keep records separately for both. Business expenses recorded in the books are used in the Trading, Profit and loss account. On the other hand, money used from the business fund for private use is termed as cash drawings, and it is adjusted to the figure of net profit in your balance sheet. Furthermore, if you have taken goods from the business for personal consumption, then this will be treated as Drawings of Goods. Hence, adjustments should be made to both Trading, Profit and Loss account and the balance sheet.
7. You should, of course, keep bank statements, cheques stubs and proper cash book. This will help you prepare your bank reconciliation statement and ensure the accuracy of the closing cash and bank balances to be posted in your balance sheet.

Returns

As a taxpayer, you are required to furnish the following returns:

Who is a Disabled Person?

“Disabled person” means a person a person suffering from permanent disablement.

Income Tax Profits

Two important rules are:

- i. Capital expenditure is not an allowable deduction in working out the profits for Income Tax purposes.
- ii. The only expenses which are deductible are those which are exclusively incurred in the production of gross income.

Capital Expenditure means money paid for the purchase of a fixed asset that will be used in the day-to-day running of a business. In other words, it is not purchased for re-sale.

Example: Cost of business premises, plant & machinery, vehicles etc.

Revenue Expenditure are those expenditures incurred to generate revenues. These are also termed as Profit & Loss items.

Example: Accountancy fees, wages, rent, rates repairs, electricity bills, etc.

Although cost of business, plant & machinery and vehicles cannot be claimed as a deduction when computing profits, there are however special allowances known as capital allowances for these expenditures.

Assessment, Objection & Appeal

If you fail to submit your Income Tax return and a copy of your accounts or your VAT Returns on time or if the MRA is not satisfied with your returns, the MRA will make an estimate of your tax liability. When you receive the notice of assessment, you must decide whether to pay or to object to the assessment within 28 days of the date of the notice of the assessment.

In case you object to the amount of tax assessed, you will have to pay 10% of the tax claimed in the assessment in order for the MRA to consider your objection. The MRA is under an obligation to determine your objection within 4 months.

If you are still dissatisfied with the determination of the objection, you may make representations to the Assessment Review Committee (ARC). And if you are still dissatisfied with the decision of the ARC, you may appeal to the Supreme Court and the Privy Council.
